Dear Chief Editor/Editor,

To maintain a positive publishing environment and protect the credibility and reliability of scientific research outcomes, China National Publications Import & Export Group, Society of China University Journals, and Tsinghua University Library have initiated the establishment of the International OA Journal Evaluation Committee. This committee seeks to develop and release the International OA Journal Recommended List, which aims to select high-quality and well-reputed OA journals. The list provides informational support for researchers, helping them avoid low-quality journals and better select platforms for publishing their research articles.

To further enhance the collection of journal information, we are conducting an information collection work targeting journal editorial offices. If the journal is interested in participating in the selection process for the International OA Journal Recommended List, please complete the questionnaire promptly. We greatly appreciate your support and look forward to your participation.

1. Basic Requirements for Journals:
1) Should have a standard International Standard Serial Number (ISSN) and have been established for more than one year or published more than 10 articles.
2) Should primarily target researchers or professionals in related fields and regularly publish original research papers as a scientific academic journal. The journal should have a clearly defined scope for soliciting contributions.
3) The journal must be a fully Open Access journal. It should explicitly state and present its open-access policies, including copyright terms and open-access license terms (e.g., Creative Commons).
4) The journal must have a continuously maintained official website or an independent webpage under the website of the publisher. The webpage should provide detailed information about the journal, including basic information, research fields, and the article publication process.
5) The journal must implement peer review. The peer review process should be publicly and clearly explained by the journal's official platform.

2. Journal Evaluation Process:

1) The journal information collection for the International OA Journal Recommended List is conducted through two channels: proactive evaluation by the committee and application-based evaluation by editorial offices:

    - Proactive Evaluation by the Committee: This refers to the committee actively collecting relevant information on academic journals with good open science practices and including them in the evaluation scope.

    - Application-Based Evaluation by Editorial Offices: For journals not included in the recommended list, editorial offices can complete the information collection questionnaire to apply for evaluation by the committee.

2) The International OA Journal Recommended List is updated regularly. Journal information collection remains open long-term, with periodic reviews conducted by the working group. Journals that pass the review process are subject to peer review and recommendation by an expert team.

3) Journals launched within the past three years are categorized as new journals. During the evaluation process, a dedicated review team is established for new journals based on the principle of classified evaluation.
